The race was won by Takuma Sato. Qualifying Qualifying for the Houston Grand Prix was held on April 4, 2005. After the circuit closed for construction, a new chicane was added at Turn 3. The chicane was in the original layout of the track, but was originally for the tour but never used. It was therefore included on the 2005 plan. Practice for the event began at 10:00 am on April 4, 2005, and continued until 8:00 am on April 5, 2005. Qualifying results Source Race The race began at 12:00 pm ET on April 5, 2005. The race was broadcast live on ESPN2. At the start, there was a three-car crash on the front stretch as Michael Andretti and Patrick Carpentier spun in Turn 1 and down the track. The crash caused much debris on the track, which did not allow the race to run as scheduled. The race was delayed for one hour and thirty minutes, after the track had been cleared. After the restart, the race was slowed by several pit stops. At one point, it looked as if a full field was possible, but later a six car strategy would come into play, and the race
